n operation. The
the break, which is a most important one. The firm employs over 3,000 men, and is one of the largest in the country. P. B. Oliver in an interview to-night stated that they were forced to sign the scale on account of contracts that had to be filled. He absented himself from the final conference because he did not want to make any promises he could not keep. It is probable the firm will be expelled from the manufacturers' association. The strikers claim that several other firms will sign the scale next week, and that among the number will be Carnegie, Phipps & Co.

Reduction Proposed.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—The employes of six large rolling mills in Covington, Newport, Ky., and Cincinnati are about to strike on account of a proposed reduction of ten per cent in their wages, to take effect next Monday. No scale has been agreed upon, and should this strike take place it would affect about 2,000 men.

Shut Down in Glass.

PITTSBURG, June 30.—The summer shut down of the flint glass factories commenced to-day. All the factories in the country have banked their fires and the 6,000 employes will take a rest for six weeks. The annual wage conferences of flint glass and chimney blowers will begin Monday. No important changes in the scale seem probable.

Dedications at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, June 30.—Wisconsin dedicated her seven monuments to-day on the Gettysburg battle field. The exercises were held at Reynolds Grove, and within a few feet of where that general was killed during the first day's engagement. When Captain Levi Long, president of the commission, called the gathering to order and transferred the monuments to the representative of the governor of Wisconsin, the level space before the stand was crowded with veterans of Wisconsin regiments. Governor Rusk was not present, and the state treasurer, Col. H. B. Harriman, accepted the monuments on behalf of the state. United States Senator Spooner then delivered an eloquent oration.

The monuments were formally presented to the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial association by General Lucius Fairchild. General Fairchild spoke with great feeling, and many of the veterans were moved to tears. Governor Beaver, ex-officio president of the Memorial association, received the memorials in the name of the association, promising to guard and protect them. This closed the formal dedicatory exercises, but a number of speeches were afterwards made by prominent Wisconsin men. The seven Wisconsin monuments are splendid structures and are those of the Third, Fifth, Seventh, Sixth, Twenty-sixth, and Company G, First regiment sharpshooters. General Longstreet of the confederate army was in attendance at the Wisconsin dedication this morning, and Colonel Berdan, of the famous sharpshooters, was also present. The weather was splendid.

Sheridan at Sea.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—General Sheridan was removed from his house to the Swatara about 11 o'clock this morning. The Swatara sailed at 1:15 p. m. General Sheridan was safely aboard about noon. His transfer from his home to the vessel occupied an hour. It was accomplished without the slightest obstacle or delay. The general rested well last night. He bore the removal excellently, and when the vessel steamed slowly away was in at least as good condition as before leaving home.

A small crowd had gathered in front of the house to catch a glimpse of the sick man when the Red Cross ambulance drove up at the door. A few minutes later General Sheridan was placed on a low cot, with handles on either side, like a stretcher, and brought down stairs from his bedroom in the second story by five of his orderlies and placed in the ambulance. Doctors O'Reilly and Matthews and his brother, Col. Sheridan, entered the ambulance and accompanied him to the vessel. Mrs. Sheridan, with Colonel Kellogg, Mrs. Lydecker and the two nurses, entered carriages and followed the ambulance. The general was placed in the ambulance on the cot feet foremost. On the way down the general conversed freely with his attendants. He frequently asked the condition of the weather and the prospects of its changing; how far it was to the navy yard, and how soon they would leave after arriving there. He appeared to be cheerful and did not seem to be fatigued from the ride. When the ambulance arrived at the dock, six sailors lifted the cot out of the ambulance and carried it over the starboard side of the vessel. The general was then carried into the captain's cabin, which is situated on the spar deck, and put in his swinging cot.

At one o'clock Captain McGowan took the brig and gave the necessary orders for getting under way, and at 1.15 o'clock, as the tide was at its highest point, the hawsers were cast loose and the ship swung out of her dock amid a waving of hats from the captain and Doctors O'Reilly and Matthews, who stood on the dock. The ship was assisted out into the Potomac by the yard tug Rescue, when she was cast loose and proceeded slowly down the river on her way to Nonquitt.

Civil Service Order.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The president has issued an executive order extending the classification of the civil service, and it went into effect this morning. The order places all officers, clerks and other employes of all the executive departments under the same regulations in regard to civil service rules. Heretofore the civil service rules have covered nothing under $900 in some departments, in others $800, and others $720. This order divides all employes receiving more than $720 into ten classes, but provides that no person who may be appointed to office by and with the advice and consent of the senate, nor any person employed merely as messenger, laborer, workman or watchman shall be considered as within the classifications provided in the order.

Great Fire in Sweden.

LONDON, June 30.—Property has been destroyed by fires at Sundsvall and Umea, Sweden, valued at 15,000,000 kroner. Twelve thousand persons were rendered homeless by the flames. King Oscar is visiting the distressed, and is engaged in relieving the wants of the sufferers. Houses, forests and standing crops on the farms in other districts were also burned.

MANITOU SPRINGS.

Republicans Ratify the National Nominees.

Hon. Creed Haymond Delivers an Address.

A Large List of Arrivals at the Hotels.

Pike's Peak Parties—Notes and Locals.

According to previous announcement, the republicans of Manitou united in a mass meeting to ratify the nominations of Harrison and Morton. Long ere the demonstration began to show early in the evening, when crowds of patriotic youngsters began piling up boxes, barrels and other inflammable materials in the park in front of the Barker house. About 8 o'clock a special Midland train arrived bearing the Firemen's band of Colorado Springs and nearly two hundred republicans from that city. This started the ball. The big bonfire was lighted, fireworks were displayed and the music of the band and the colored drum corps woke patriotic echoes in the valley of Manitou. An immense crowd gathered in the street in front of the Barker house, and the formal speaking were opened by addresses by Judge John Fields, Major McAllister and Rev. Johnson (colored), of Colorado Springs. They were listened to attentively and enthusiastically applauded.

In the meantime it became generally known that Hon. Creed Haymond, chairman of the California delegation to the Chicago convention, was in the city. He had arrived on a late train and was still at dinner when the band marched to the Cliff house and, amidst a serenade, a delegation composed of Senator Campbell and Mr. J. H. Barlow, of Colorado Springs, and Messrs. Grafton, Caldwell and Nichols waited on Colonel Haymond, and although that gentleman was suffering severely from a cold they persuaded him to accompany them to the Barker house piazza, where he was introduced to the crowd by Hon. John Campbell. Following is a very brief synopsis of his remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: The sound of [illegible] will [illegible] you as well as I otherwise can that I am too hoarse to address you to-night. If this were an ordinary occasion I should certainly refuse. But it is an ordinary occasion. It is a matter that interests every man in this great republic who has a wife and children to support of who has to earn his own bread.

We are no longer two great political parties divided on questions of trifling importance, but a united body of American people fighting for our homes, our rights, and our industries against an alliance south of the Mason and Dixon line, headed by Cleveland in the north and Carlisle in the south, working for the interests of England and the Cobden club.

On this 30th day of June, on the eve of that great battle fought on July 1st, General Lee issued an order to his army, that, should he drive the federals back and invade the north, and any man in his army should burn a factory or desecrate a home, he should be hanged. [A voice, "Hurrah for Lee."] But the republican party marched against Lee and swept his forces back. Now, the democrats have marshalled their forces again, and are preparing to attack the workman's home and his industries, and if they win, the factories all over this industrious north will be closed and the workman without bread, and then the rebel brigadiers in whose hands are now the reins of government can shout, "Surely Appomattox has been avenged."

I voted for Blaine [applause] in the Chicago convention and all our delegation were in favor of Blaine as long as there was a possibility of his taking the nomination. I have served under Blaine's standard since '76, and it was the first order of his I ever disregarded when California gave sixteen votes for him after his letter came. Then I said: "If we can't have Blaine, let us have the American whom Blaine loves the most. Let us have the man who four years ago withdrew from the race as soon as there was a chance for Blaine's nomination, and who last Sunday renounced his chances in favor of Blaine. The arrangement was all made and Blaine would have been nominated without opposition on Monday had not the letter demanding the withdrawal of his name been received. This turned the tide to Harrison. We have nominated our ticket and we offer it to the public, surmounted by the stars and stripes, against Cleveland and the red bandana.

The democratic party has for the first time in its history come out under its true colors. The red bandana, a flag which no virtuous woman honors and under which no brave man would fight. It is the symbol of slavery. It was a sign that she whose head it protected belonged to another, and the republican party removed it from her head while it wrested the shackles from her feet. The confederates then kept some of the stars and two of the colors on their flag. If we could beat it then how much easier can we beat it with all the stars and two of the colors gone. [Applause.]

This matter interests the ladies as well. If any of the women of Colorado have husbands so foolish as to come home wearing a red bandana in the place of the American flag, she should lay the broomstick across his shoulders. I think she would have just cause for divorce, and if she sues for divorce on this ground, I will come to Colorado and undertake her cause, and I am much mistaken if a Colorado jury would not give her a divorce and all his money too. [Laughter.]

I don't want to abuse the democrats, for I know some democrats whom I respect very much—some who are much better than the party, but the people of the south, white and black alike, are in as abject slavery as ever the negroes were before the war. In the St. Louis convention Cleveland and Carlisle put their foot on the neck of their party and trampled it into submission. We must work not only for ourselves, but for the freedom of all our people.

There has been a good deal of talk since Harrison's nomination about his record on the Chinese immigration question. That is a nice party to talk about anybody's record. The fact is, California has not always been without dissension with regard to Chinese immigration. Before people had learned to fear Chinese competition, the democratic party was in favor of it. But when the people began to see the evil effects of Chinese immigration, both parties took a decided stand against it. I remember when Senator Broderick and I [illegible] Chinese immigration, and I believe if they were both living to-day they would be found voting by the side of every one of the republican senators and members who voted for the Chinese restriction act. I remember when Senator Broderick and I [illegible] Chinese immigration, and I know how dangerous hate the Chinese became. Broderick became a martyr to it, and Senator Fred Douglas calls them an [illegible] race. I never saw a democrat who was not willing to swear that he was the best [illegible] and [illegible] he would [illegible] him [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON,
Of New York.

If the enthusiasm for Harrison and Morton continues to grow in this county up to election day, it will be the proper thing for the chairman of the democratic county committee to move to make the vote unanimous.

In our local columns will be found a notice of the meeting of the humane society of this city, for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization. The purposes of this society are so broad that all kindly-disposed people should be identified with it. There are very few days when this society cannot do some active work to relieve human beings or animals from suffering. The society is not formed simply for the purpose of having such an organization in this city, but to do earnest work in its special department. It is to be hoped that everybody interested in such an organization will be present. Your name and fee is a help, but it will be a greater help if you are present at the meeting, and by your presence show your personal interest in this good cause.

Harrison has a very clear, strong way of putting things. This is his estimate of the democratic party as given in a speech delivered in Des Moines in 1883:

What does the democratic party stand for? What are its principles? What new direction would begin to be given to the ship if the helm were put into the hands of the democratic party? I know what that party has been against. It has been an opposition party. [Laughter.] It was against freedom in Kansas; it was against the war; it was against the drafts; it was against emancipation; it was against a second call for troops; it was against reconstruction; it was against the Fourteenth amendment; it was against the Fifteenth; it was against the civil rights bill; it was against the act to protect the elective franchise; it was against the resumption of specie payments; but it is not against any of these things now—it is understood to be. The country, in its judgment, has left all these things to history; they are no longer subjects of debate; they are historical facts; they are the enrolled pages of our most brilliant and eventful epoch. We have climbed the fiery and bloody pass. The lowering clouds have lifted or have failed in refreshing showers. It is a time of peace and of amazing prosperity throughout the land. So far as legislation and public administration can shape the course of events, these things have come because of the wise, progressive and patriotic legislation of the republican party. [Applause.] If they have come because the democratic party has kept on a minority. There was a long period in the history of our country when, as I had occasion to say once before, the democratic party seemed to be playing with our country the child's game of "puss." When the democratic party was up the country was down, and when the country was up the democratic party was down. [Applause.]

It seems to be generally considered that it was a mistake to advise the abolition of the tax on whiskey in the republican platform under any circumstances. Mr. Blaine in his famous "Paris interview" with Smalley of the New York Tribune last December put the whole question very simply and plainly. He said in answer to a question that he would advise the repeal of the whiskey tax.

"No, I would not. Other considerations than those of financial administration are to be taken into account with regard to whiskey. There is a moral side to it. To cheapen the price of whiskey is to increase its consumption enormously. There would be no sense in urging the reform wrought by high license in many states if the national government neutralizes the good effect by making whiskey within reach of every one at 20 cents a gallon. Whiskey would be everywhere distilled if the surveillance of the government were withdrawn by the remission of the tax, and illicit sales could not then be prevented even by a policy as rigorous and searching as that with which Russia pursues the nihilists. It would destroy high license at once in all the states. * * * So long as there is whiskey to tax, I would tax it. * * * The tax on whiskey by the federal government, with its suppression of all illicit distillation and consequent enhancement of price, has been a powerful agent in the temperance reform by putting it beyond the reach of so many."

THE TRINCHERA ESTATE.

The eastern portion of the San Luis valley, lying between the crest of the Sangre de Cristo range and the Rio Grande, is chiefly occupied by the Sangre de Cristo grant, embracing one million acres. This is one of the old Mexican grants which was confirmed by congress as a valid grant and for which the patent was issued ten years ago. About 1870 this large body of land was divided into two parts. The southern half, now known as the Costilla estate, was sold by the owners of the grant, who retained the northern portion; and quite recently the owners of the northern portion, for the purpose of colonizing it, and with a view of simplifying the transfer of small tracts of land, have merged it into a company, and have placed it under the control of Dr. W. A. Bell, of Manitou, as president. This property consists of four hundred and fifty thousand acres, which extends from the summit of the Sierra Blanca mountain in Colorado, on the north, to within three miles of the town of San Luis on the Rio Costilla on the south, and reaches from the summit of the Sangre de Cristo range on the east to the Rio Grande on the west. This large tract not only embraces the Western slope of the Sangre de Cristo mountains, which contain gold, silver, copper, iron and other metals, and also embraces amongst their foot hills great [illegible] pine and spruce, but also a large area of rich agricultural land, through which never-failing streams fed by the mountain snows run from east to west until they empty themselves into the Rio Grande. The Trinchera Estate company has commenced to utilize the agricultural resources of this property by the construction of two irrigating canals at a cost of some $200,000, and has already put under ditch some forty thousand acres of choice agricultural land. As soon as the land now supplied with water has been settled by colonists the company will extend its irrigating system, and has in contemplation the creation of large storage reservoirs by means of which from fifty thousand to one hundred thousand acres more of the driest land in the valley will be supplied with an abundance of water.

The President's Work.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The president has signed the Indian appropriation bill. The Cincinnati exposition committee has been informed by the president that on account of the pressure of business he cannot accept the invitation to attend the exposition at this time. He has now on hand 130 bills that must be examined and disposed of during the coming week.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 20.—Seven hundred thousand dollars was placed in a bank here to-day, to be used in the erection of three new blast furnaces in this vicinity. The furnaces are to be seventeen feet each. The projectors of the enterprise are H. L. Lehardelchon of Birmingham and parties from Charleston and Savannah. The work is to begin immediately.

Begging Fraternity of New York.

The begging fraternity includes some unique specimens of professional eighty seekers. With these the police never interfere—why, no one knows. Perhaps it is because they are harmless in their way; perhaps because no other means of gaining a livelihood is open to them; perhaps because it might puzzle the courts how to dispose of them.

What, for instance, could be done with the poor, limbless fellow who crawls along Broadway, between Market and Walnut, usually on the west side of the street, and whose hands are his sole instruments of locomotion? The leather stumps of the fellow excite immediate compassion, and he is so utterly helpless in the view of the pedestrian who swings along on the limbs that God has given him, that no one begrudges the numerous dimes showered on the luckless creature. He is so lowly, so unprepared for the struggle for existence, that he is really beneath hostile attention. So he passes his life unchallenged and free to do as he wills. He is the recipient of more money than any of his class, and is said to be in comfortable circumstances. He lost his legs in a Missouri Pacific accident, for which he was amply compensated by the company. It is unfair to suppose, though, that he commenced operations on false ground. Upon occasion he can travel at a very respectable rate, and crosses streets crowded with vehicles without assistance with an adroitness that compliments admiration. Here never impecunious, and not soliciting charity, his unfortunate condition is usually and successfully speaking for itself. Occasionally, however, he says: "Won't you help me, please?"—New York Commercial Bulletin.

WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS.

A Young Man from Ohio Who Has Won Fame and Wealth.

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, June 20.—William Dean Howells is said to be the foremost American novelist of the day. He [illegible] wonderful, notwithstanding some of his [illegible] and many who are not critics, assert that there is nothing in his stories. There is "nothing" in local if by "nothing" is meant the absence of the exciting and extraordinary. He deliberately defied the old superstition that a novel, to be interesting, must be based on the uncommon and awful, must depict characters and phases of life not common, must have climaxes of high degree and angels of the most angelic sort.

He has demonstrated what every body knows, but what [illegible] to forget, or forget—that it is [illegible] what is said as the manner of saying it that makes success in literature. How all's strength is style. It is mysterious as a young lady of very weak intellectual calibre and after reading one of his romances. Why, the characters are more like the people in books. I have known just such folks in real life, often.

He has a gift for texture and details. A page of one of his stories may be devoted to telling how his heroine sits down; but if you're fond of the young lady we are [illegible] to see how they turn out. Frequently there isn't much "turn-out" to them, but they interest the reader to the last word. Not madly, as do the fiery yarns of Ouida, the gory adventures of Horseback Rider Haggard, or the weird tales of Stevenson, but pleasantly and beneficially. Assuredly our time is not wasted in reading Howells, for he is a study in style and good English. The old schoolmaster who says he only read the first and last chapters of a novel—the first to get acquainted with the plan and the girl upon whom the man's heart was set; the last, to see how it all came out—would find Howells at all [illegible]

Howells' [illegible] is the very reverse of what is called realism, for the reason that it deals with the [illegible] and [illegible] sciences of life. He is the herald of the new school of fiction for which the world is believed to be getting ready—the clean school whose disciples are free and free from for intricate plots, thrilling episodes and terrific [illegible] and [illegible] to cradle the Devil of [illegible] Even the English say that the novel of the [illegible] and light is the novel of the future.

In the summer of 1861, when the late civil war was but fairly begun, Mr. Howells came to New York from Ohio with the laudable intention of going into metropolitan journalism as a career. His father was a printer and editor of a country paper, and he was taught by and understand the awful mysteries of a printing office. It was but natural that he should have it in him to write. Before coming to New York he had attained the distinction of doing editorial work on The Cincinnati Commercial and Columbus State Journal, and had lifted up his voice in song within the respectable covers of The Atlantic Monthly. He was then 24.

His first incision into the New York press was in the form of an article entitled "Italian Politics," published in The Times, and paid for, with a five dollar note. The young man had his eye on an Italian consulship at the time and got it from President Lincoln. When he became United States consul at Venice, one youthful dream was realized. The lady whom he married, also an Ohioan, was engaged to him there, and went over the sea alone to visit him later.

Howells returned to America [illegible] the expiration of his term of office with a full of a desire to go into metropolitan journalism. But the fates had fixed it [illegible] a thankless business. He became editor of The Atlantic Monthly [illegible] which he opened before him the post office of years of which have been devoted almost entirely to the production of novels. "Their Wedding Journey" and "A Chance Acquaintance" laid the foundation of his fame.

An old friend says of him that the young poet, who was proud to get any coin for his poems, the young writer for the press who gratified and not go beyond a petty salary, is able as a novelist to command terms which have never been equaled by any other American member of his craft, and never exceeded by more than half a dozen of his fellow craftsmen in other countries. He is a renowned literary figure, yet he wrote a play which he had trouble to [illegible] it to bring out, and which was not a success when it was brought out.

The published portraits of Howells usually make him look foggy and heavy—sleepy, if not stupid. Sleepy he probably is sometimes, but stupid never. Not quite of medium height, he is compactly built, and as the years go by is acquiring what Oscar Wilde describes as "that Matchless of figure which is the last resort of stoutness." And he is getting bristly on head and lip. His eyes are bright, humorous and expressive.

Mr. Howells has children. One of his daughters is now almost grown. He lives in Boston, in that part known as the Back Bay extension, or what is called "the [illegible]." It is a red brick house with brown stone trimmings. In short, within and without it is Silas Lapham's house. Those who are familiar with it say it isn't particularly foolish. In conclusion it may [illegible] the banker or merchant rather than the literary man. At the back, on the second floor, the author has his studio, the windows of which overlook Charles river, Bunker Hill monument and the dome of the buildings of Harvard college. By the way, Mr. Howells is not a college graduate. His education is [illegible] nevertheless.

His diversion is agriculture. He has splendid beds of flowers and attends to them himself. He works from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. dining at 2 p. m., and devotes the remainder of the day to doing what he [illegible] to do. He writes about 1,000 or 1,500 words a day, and with this he can earn, out two novels and various smaller productions in the course of a year. He is a careful reviser, frequently rewriting every word in dozens of pages.

The typical literary man, as he is popularly depicted and as he frequently was, entertains no regards and money has been left to Mr. Howells. He needs to have noticed those dubious precedents dazed charitably under the load of [illegible] eccentricities of genius." Common sense, modesty, practical thrift and steadfast industry are his characteristics. In the line of work he has the standard faith, and proves his faith as he goes along. Neither does he rejoice in any of the gout of the profession. He is rather sorry [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] a great service to the world. He is [illegible] for [illegible]

County Board of Equalization.

Public notice is hereby given that the county commissioners of El Paso county, Colorado, will sit as a board of equalization for the assessment and taxation of the property of said county for the year A. D. 1888, and will meet in session as such board of equalization for the purpose of equalizing and correcting the assessment roll of said county for the current year, and for the purpose of equalizing, according to law, the valuation of railroad property and assessment of value for taxation of railroad property for the year A. D. 1888.

That on Monday, the second day of July, A. D. 1888, the said county commissioners will hold their second meeting as such board of equalization, continuing in session from day to day for the purpose of hearing complaints, only from persons who appeared before the board at their first meeting and stated grounds of complaint, and not from persons who failed to appear at said first meeting, unless by the judgment of the board, first and proper, no reasons are manifested that they should appear at such second meeting.

By order of the board.

THE GAZETTE.

SUNDAY, JULY 1, 1888.

She at the opera house to-morrow evening.

Judge E. A. Smith, of Fountain, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. James Duncan, Jr., came in from his ranch near Granger yesterday.

Rev. J. S. Black will preach to-day at the First Presbyterian church both morning and evening.

Rev. W. R. Pollock will preach to-day both morning and evening at the First Baptist church.

Preaching to-day both morning and evening at the M. E. Church South, corner of Cucharas and Weber streets.

The base ball club expect a large crowd to witness their two games with the crack Five Points club of Denver on July Fourth.

Preaching at the Christian church to-day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at 2:15 p. m. Young people's meeting at 7 p. m.

The man who was arrested by Officer Chapman on Thursday on suspicion of having stolen some silver knives, forks and spoons was released from custody yesterday.

County Superintendent of Schools Berney was engaged yesterday in mailing the blanks to all the school districts in the county upon which to make out their annual reports.

Hon. M. Russell Thayer and family of Philadelphia are visiting with Mr. C. L. Tutt of this city. Mr. Thayer is one of the judges of the court of common pleas of Philadelphia.

Work will probably begin on the new iron bridge over Shook's run on Pike's Peak avenue in a few days. The contract calls for the completion of the bridge by August 1st.

The road to the Seven Lakes has been placed in good repair and the trip can now be made by wagon with but little trouble. Parties are going to the summit of the peak daily by this route.

McShane, Clough & Moore, the contractors, will begin work on the sewerage system to-morrow morning with a large force of men. Five car loads of sewer pipe are expected to arrive in a few days.

Rev. A. G. Peck will preach at the First Methodist church this morning. There will be no services this evening, the congregation uniting in the temperance meeting at the Congregational church.

Twelve cents per pound seems to be the average price which El Paso county sheep men are receiving for this season's clip. Several choice clips however have been disposed of at a slight advance over the regular price.

Mr. W. H. Vinett will open a first class restaurant at Clark's old stand on Pike's Peak avenue on July Fourth. Mr. Vinett is a caterer of considerable experience, and will conduct a thoroughly

Rev. A. G. Peck, pastor of the First Methodist church, will preach in the new pavilion at Green Mountain Falls this afternoon at 3 o'clock. An extra suburban train will be run over the Midland leaving the depot at half past one o'clock.

The Western Coal and Mining company of Kansas, has filed a statement with the county clerk showing that the principal office of the company will hereafter be located in this city and that Mr. J. B. Carnes will have the sole management of its affairs here.

The Colorado Springs club will play the Pueblo Pastimes on the latter's new grounds this afternoon. Quite a delegation of local base ball enthusiasts will accompany the club, who will leave on the 12:40 train over the Denver & Rio Grande railroad this morning.

Mr. Harry F. Griscom, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was in the city last winter, died at his home in that city on June 25th. He was among the most promising young journalists and republican politicians of the state. During his stay in this city he formed many pleasant acquaintances, by whom the news of his death will be greeted with profound sorrow.

There will be a meeting of the humane society, to perfect a permanent organization, on Monday afternoon in the city hall at 4 o'clock. All who have signified a desire to join this society are expected to be present. Also those who are interested in the objects of the society and would like to join it are earnestly requested to attend the meeting.

City Marshal Dana has determined to rid the city of tramps. To-morrow morning work will begin on the sewerage system. The city marshal proposes to have an extra man added to the day force, who will look after the tramps. All vagrants who can be found will be put to work on the sewers, and in this way it is expected that considerable work will be done.

At the Congregational church on Bijou street, opposite Acacia park, services will be held to-day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. David Tatum, of Cleveland, O., a minister in the Society of Friends, will preach in the morning, and in the evening will give an address on temperance. Miss Frances E. Willard writes of him: "Few have been more effective in their labors than our much esteemed friend, David Tatum, of Cleveland."

Schaefider & Gardner are now handling an extensive line of carriages, buggies, surreys and phaetons, at their factory on East Huerfano street between Tejon and Cascade. Their stock includes some of the vehicles manufactured by the Favorite Carriage Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, which has acquired a wide reputation on account of the superiority of its buggies and carriages. The prices at which the firm are selling their stock are difficult to beat and the fullest satisfaction is guaranteed.

Yesterday's issue of the Denver Republican contained a statement of the salaries of Colorado postmasters, and the receipts of the offices of the presidential rank as altered from the annual allowance division of the postmaster general's office. The salary of the postmaster in this city has been increased from $2,500 to one half that of the postmaster at Manitou from $1,400 to $1,500. The gross receipts of the Colorado Springs office for the last fiscal year were $[illegible] an increase of $38 over the previous year. The gross receipts of the Manitou office were $3,520.70, an increase over the preceding year of $151.

A largely attended meeting of the democrats of Monument was held last evening in the Grand Army hall for the purpose of organizing a Cleveland and Thurman club. The meeting was called to order about eight o'clock. Mr. G. W. Musser was elected chairman and Mr. J. M. Duffy secretary. It was voted unanimously to organize a Cleveland and Thurman club. The following officers were elected: President, O. P. Jackson; first vice president, E. P. McElroy; second vice president, David McShane; secretary, J. M. Duffy. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws which will be submitted at the next meeting. Speeches were made by Messrs. O. P. Jackson, A. [illegible] House and O. M. Howard of this city.

The San Francisco Evening Report in speaking of "She," which will be presented at the opera house to-morrow night, said: "When Lewis Morrison brought out his pet hobby Faust, a while ago, the accuracy and mechanical effects caused a good deal of talk. They were, in fact, the sensation of the play. A young man named Brady was responsible for the work, and he then and there made a reputation as a scenic arranger. She, the most generally adopted book of the century, has been taken in hand, and we shall see what he has evolved from Haggard's wild tale. It is safe to say that Mr. Brady has utilized every opportunity for scenic impressions. It drew a crowded house at the Alcazar last evening, and while quite as fine operatic version ran as long at the Tivoli that it was supposed everybody had tired of it. Of the two dramatizations that of William Brady is preferable, because it sticks more closely to the original, and gives a better selection of the thrilling incidents in the book. The mounting is also acceptable. Miss Charlotte Tittel played the difficult part of Ayesha, the "She who must be obeyed," to the boisterous satisfaction of the audience. She was called before the curtain again and again, and presented with several floral designs. Miss Laura Biggar pleased as Ustane. Brady's "Job," of course, kept the audience in the best of humor. She will draw.

BORN.

Wasson—At Idaho, Mo., on June 21, to the wife of W. A. Wasson, a daughter.

REAL ESTATE, LOANS AND INSURANCE!

Agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. Insures Lives of Persons out of Town.

Insurance Carefully Written in First-Class Companies Only.

Losses Promptly and Satisfactorily Adjusted.

STRANGERS, and others not posted in our Real Estate Market, often ask the question, "Where can I best invest my money to be sure of Quick and Profitable returns?"

1st. I would say, select a locality where you have the most SUNSHINE, the finest view of our GRAND MOUNTAIN SCENERY, etc.

2nd. See that you locate where you can enjoy the best WATER ADVANTAGES that our city affords. A home without water in this country is a desert, and when I say "BEST WATER ADVANTAGES" I mean not only for irrigating purposes, which is very important, but also for all DOMESTIC PURPOSES. Our water supply at present is limited, and unless greatly increased the time is near at hand, if not already here, when every drop will be needed inside present city limits.

3rd. Do not locate where lots are too low in price—Low priced LOTS bring low priced HOUSES, and a PALACE surrounded by shanties will never sell for half its value. Better economize in other ways and secure a lot that will increase in value.

4th. Dont wait until the "Rock Island" comes in and then pay 25 per cent more than present rates.

5th. Lastly, call and see us and We will convince you that "BOULDER HEIGHTS" possesses all the above advantages.

FOR RENT—FURNISHED.

SOMETHING NEW.

Having just received one of the Largest consignments of WALL PAPER that was ever brought to El Paso county, at one time, and in order to dispose of it quick, and to give our patrons a share of the profits, we have concluded to give three grand prizes, that shall be a benefit to every property holder in the county. To every purchaser of six double rolls of Paper and over and border for the same amount of paper, we shall give a chance in a GRAND DRAWING for the papering of three parlors in three different ways, the size of the parlor not to exceed 16x18.

THE FIRST PRIZE—Shall be for papering ceiling and walls with the very best hand-made Embossed Paper in our store, the lucky party to select the paper. The wood work to be painted or stained to match the paper.

SECOND PRIZE—The ceiling and walls to be papered with Colored Bronze Paper, wood work painted or stained to match.

THIRD PRIZE—The ceiling and walls papered with a flat paper; that is, a paper without gilt; wood work painted or stained to match.

The mode of drawing will be by tickets, with name and number, put in a box, which will be sealed up and a duplicate of the same given the purchaser. The box will not be opened until the 31st day of July, 1888. Then all tickets shall be placed in a revolving wheel and a disinterested party blindfolded shall draw out one ticket, which shall indicate the owner of the first prize. The second and third in the same manner shall then be drawn. 6-14-1y

"You can fool some of the people all the time, you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all the people all the time."

Merchants who publish silly advertisements ponder on this profitably.

Is it better to deal with Clothiers who claim everything and show very little, or to patronize a house that confesses only what it can perform?

We have a great stock of things that men and boys wear. Our Clothing is carefully selected and well made. Choose your apparel HERE, because we can fit you, and after you once learn the merits of our goods we believe you will continue to use them.
